It is difficult to publish an authentic Catalogue of the students of the University, or of other material facts in connection with the history of the Institution, during the war. There are remaining amongst the Archives only some unsatisfactory fragments, and we find no Catalogue. It is sufficient to say, that during this period the College roll reached its greatest numbers. In 1862-3 there were 256 Cadets; and in 1863-4 the number reached 341. In 1865 the University closed with 265 Cadets. The officers on duty at the University at various times from the beginning to its close are given above.

THE DESTRUCTION OF THE UNIVERSITY.

On the 4th of April 1865 the Main building of the University, including the Rotunda, were destroyed by fire. The College Library, and also the Libraries of the Erosoahic and Philomathic Societies were consumed. The President's Mansion, the Observatory and a few cottages for Professors remained.

PRESENT CAPACITY.

In 1868 a new and splendid building, capable of accommodating 200 Cadets, was erected. This building containing a large Mess Hall, and commodious offices and recitation rooms, as well as extensive dormitories. There is now abundant room at the University for 200 Cadets and all necessary offices.

Requirements for Admission.

For admission into the Freshman class, all applicants must produce satisfactory evidence of unexceptionable character, especially the testimony of their last teacher. If they have been members of any other college, a certificate of honorable dismissal will also be required. To enter the Freshman class at its formation, the candidate must stand an approved examination on Arithmetic, Geography, English Grammar, Greek and Latin Grammar, including Latin and Greek prosody, four books of Cæsar's Gallic War, Sallust's Catiline and Jugurtha, the Bucolics and six books of the Æneid of Virgil, Select Orations of Cicero, Harkness' Arnold's First Latin Book, McClintock and Crooks' First Book in Greek, Mitchell's Ancient Geography, and Jacob's Greek Reader.

The classes are regularly formed the first Monday in October of each year. This is the most favorable time for entering. Applicants will, however, be examined at any period during term time, when they may present themselves.

All persons coming to the University, for the purpose of seeking admission, must report themselves to one of the officers as early as the next day after their arrival in Tuscaloosa; and are not at liberty to lodge in the University, until they are regularly admitted.

Students can be admitted to a partial course, under circumstances that may seem to justify it.

PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT.

Students not qualified to enter either of the regular classes will be received into the Preparatory Department and there trained for the Freshman class.

Course of Study.

PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT.—Arithmetic; Geography; the English, Latin and Greek Grammars; Latin and Greek Prosody; four books of Cæsar's Gallic War; Sallust's Catiline and Jugurtha; the Bucolics; Jacob's Greek Reader, or Zenophon's Anabasis.

FRESHMAN YEAR. — Six Orations of Cicero; Horace's Odes and Epodes; Latin Composition; Iliad; Heroditus; Thucydides; Greek Composition; Davies' Bourdon's Algebra; Davies' Legendre's Geometry and Trigonometry; Ancient History; Whateley's Rhetoric; Composition and Declamation.

SOPHOMORE YEAR.—Horace's Satires and Epistles; Ovid; Terence; Cicero de Senectute; Demosthenes on the Crown; Xenophon's Memorabilia; Sophocles' Antigone; Church's Descriptive Geometry with its application to Spherical Projections; Church's Shades, Shadows and Perspective; Davies' Surveying; Church's Analytical Geometry; Ancient History; History of the Middle Ages; Whateley's Rhetoric; Porter's Chemistry; Composition and Declamation.

JUNIOR YEAR.—Tacitus and Juvenal; Demosthenes' Philippics; Church's Differential and Integral Calculus; Natural Philosophy; Mineralogy; Dana's Geology; Well's Modern History; Rhetoric; Logic, and Forensic Disputations.

SENIOR YEAR.—Cicero de Officiis; Euripides; Mahan's Civil Engineering; Moseley's Mechanics of Engineering; Astronomy; International and Constitutional Law; First Volume of Kent's Commentaries: part 1st, nine lectures, part 2nd, lectures on constitutional law, with Vattel's law of Nations, and Story on the constitution; Whateley's Logic; Hamilton's lectures on Metaphysics; Haven's Mental Philosophy; Burke on the Sublime and Beautiful.

APPARATUS.

The University possesses valuable apparatus in the departments of Natural Philosophy, Astronomy, Engineering and Chemistry; also, extensive and well selected cabinets in Mineralogy, Geology and Conchology.

The Chemical department is filled up for the illustration of recent discoveries in Chemistry; and the Laboratory will be kept up to the requirements of modern science.

In connection with the department of Geology and Agricultural Chemistry, the Laboratory is prepared for the analysis of soils, ores, &c., which is open to students, and in which they receive practical instruction in that branch of science.

The cabinet of minerals, &c., contains a suit of specimens, illustrative of the Geology of Alabama. This collection, when completed, will present at a glance the mineral resources of the State.

The Library consists of about five thousand volumes, A descriptive catalogue, extending to 260 pages, has been prepared, upon the same plan as the English Signet Library, The society libraries of the students contain about four thousand volumes.

The astronomical observatory is furnished with instruments for observation, of a superior order. The West wing is occupied by a transit circle, constructed by Simms, of London, having a telescope of five feet focal length, with an object glass of four inches clear apert.

ure. Accompanying the transit circle is a very superior clock of Dent, of London. In the central apartment, is placed an equatorial instrument, constructed also by Simms. The telescope has a clear aperture of eight inches, and a focal length of twelve feet, and is mounted after the manner of the celebrated Dorpat instrument constructed by Fraunhofer. Connected with this instrument is a clock by Molyneuk, of London.

There are, also, two portable achromatics, one by Dollond, of seven feet focal length, and four inches aperture; the other by Simms, of two feet focal length, and three inches aperture; and a reflecting circle by Troughton, of ten inches diameter.

Instruction in the operations of practical astronomy will constitute a part of the regular course. Portable instruments, in possession of the department, of less size than those above named, increase the facilities of illustrating methods of observation.

DISCIPLINE.

Military discipline will be enforced at all times, experience having shown that this is the most efficacious means for correcting those irregularities and excesses into which young men are at times liable to fall.

Expenses.

The University offers the most liberal inducements to parents on the score of expenses. The whole charge for Board, in the Mess Hall, Tuition, Fuel, Room Rent and the use of Furniture and Library is only $125 for the scholastic year. Payment made in advance of $41 66 on the 1st of October, the 1st of January, and the 1st of April. *Cadets will be expected to furnish their own towels and lights, and to provide for their own washing. This latter will cost about $1 50 per month.

On the eminent Physicians, in the city of Tuscaloosa, within one mile of the College, Cadets will rely for medical attention, and will be expected to pay their own bills. It will be found by comparison, that this is less than half of the usual expenses in any respectable College in the United States.

Any Cadet, at the request of his parents, can be permitted to board and lodge at any private house in the city or vicinity in which event the College charges will be very small.

VACATIONS.

There are three. The Christmas vacation commences on Saturday preceding Christmas day and continues for one week. The Spring vacation commences on the Saturday preceding the first of April and continues one week. The Summer vacation commences on the 1st of July and ends on the 1st of October.

The regular annual term of the University of Alabama will commence on the first Monday, of October, 1870.

[Note by the President of the University.]

*These low charges are certainly not sufficient to cover the outlay. It is supposed that Regents, in fixing this amount, were actuated by a desire to relieve our people as much as possible in the present depressed condition of the country. They were moved, no doubt, mainly, by the knowledge, that the annual income of the University (about $24,000) would enable them to sustain the Institution, until a general prosperity should authorize an increase of charges.

Cadets are assured that the accommodations of the Mess Hall will not be confined to these charges; but that they will be bountifully supplied within the limits of a generous and judicious economy.
